

The Dietetics Graduate Program (GP) Master of Public Health (MPH) admits approximately 25 students (seats) in the fall of each year. Submission of an application and fulfillment of prerequisite requirements do not guarantee acceptance into the Dietetics GP MPH program. Admission is competitive and based on a holistic review of applicants.

Students applying to The University of Akron who intend to enter the program will be evaluated and admitted according to the following criteria:

I. Direct Admit Pool: If the applicant is a University of Akron graduate in the Food and Environmental Nutrition program, or the Exercise Science program and have a 3.0 GPA, they will be directly admitted to the Dietetics GP MPH program.

II. Priority Pool: Students placed in this category must have successfully passed all prerequisites courses with a B or better and have a 3.0GPA. Students will then be prioritized by the date of their application and undergraduate GPA.

III. Second Pool Admission Category: If there are any students who completed their pre-reqs but there are no remaining seats left for the year, they will be placed in this category by date of application and will be accepted when a seat opens.
